A.SUFFERER. Hougkong, 12th July, 1875.

THE HONGKONG HUMANE SOCIET TO THE EDITOR OF THE " DAILY PRESS." DEAR SIR,-I was very glad to see that your evening contemporary, the China Muil, has taken up your suggestions respecting the banding over of the funds of the late Volanteer Force and the Debating Society to the newly formed Humane Association. The $112 of the Debating Society I hope will be brought before the meeting on Tuesday by the President, and I trust it will be handed over without delay. Your evening contemporary characterises the funds of the Volunteer Association as "mythical," and funcies "that the resident to whom the money received for the sale of the instruments was paid, must have left the Colony." Well perhaps your contemporary does not know that the sum in hand when the force dissolved was a very aubstantial one, and would go a good way towards the total of your contemporary's calculations. With respect to the remark that the resident who has the money has left the Colony, I believe this is not the case. The suggestion that a meeting of the former menbers abould be held for the purpose of considering the matter is a good one, and I trust it will be acted upon. I should be glad to hear any suggestions from some of the others, and meantime remain,

-From the Poetical Works of Sydney Dobell FIGHT WITH A BOA CONSTRICTOR. "Now, lads," says the Major, as cool as if he was a giving the word on parade, "thrust!" The words warn't out of his mouth when "plug" wheat all our hagnets into the old sarpint, while the Major out sword, and began a-hackin' away at him like one o'clock; but, bless yer, he might as well ha' lacked a gutter-percher roller! Well, sir, you may think as the feel o' six English baguets goin' plum through him was enough to rouse any snake as ever wore scales; and it rousted him up, with a vengeance. Fust thing I beerd was a hiss like steam comin out of a engine-biler; and then cum a smush as if the whole buildin' was down a-top of us, and a yell from our men, and then rumble-tumble among the stones. The old varmint had unreoled bisself as quick as a coil o' rope runnin' out, and with one slap of his tail had knocked the Major and five more on us head over heels. there was I; left to tackle the job single handed, with a thunderin' old snake, as long as a fire-hose, lashin' and whackin' at m with his confounded old tail, every whach soundin' as loud as if some pavior was a rammin down the Great Pyramid with church-tower. Luckily there was a forked bough in the road, so he couldn't get a fair lick at me; but the very wind of his blows putty high knocked me down of itself; and with this blessed old coil o' live rope comin curling and whirling within a hinch of my uose, and the hissin' and the thumpin' and the shakin', I'm blowed if L didn't feel jist as if I'd been cotched in one o' them precious cotton-spinnin' machines, as father used to work at in Manchester. Howsomdever, by duckin and dodgin' like a hacrobat, I managed to save my skin, and all the while I stuck to my bagnet, which was through his neck so as he couldn't get, his head loose to bite me Presently his flapping and wriggling began jo slackou, as if he was gettin' spent; and ju titlen I seed Tom Jackson, who hadn't got it quite as heavy as the rest, seramblin to his pins agin. "Hit him on the tail, Tom," screeches I, "the tail's the place!" Tom clubbed his piece, and began poundin! away like a thresher; and just then the four good licks smashed-his tail; and it's dently guided to her prey more by touch precious lucky as them big snakes are so than sight: brittle bout the tail, for as to hurtin em anywhere else, you might as well try to cut
